The Geography of Academic Entrepreneurship

Spin-offs, Firm Growth and Regional Impact

Helen Lawton Smith, Birkbeck University of London, UK

'In this timely and important book, the author brings the full weight of her erudition to bear on the spatial and economic implications of academic entrepreneurship. She systematically explains the formation of university spinoff companies and their role in the commercialization of university technology and wealth creation across the globe. This book is a "must read" for scholars of innovation and entrepreneurship and government officials who formulate and implement public policies relating to innovation, entrepreneurship, and economic development.'

Research Handbook on Public Leadership

Re-imagining Public Leadership in a Post-pandemic Paradigm

Edited by Stephen Brookes, University of Manchester, UK

'The single most important critical success factor I have encountered across policing and public sector service is leadership. This is borne out by the organisations that excel and those which fail. However we lead in a rapidly changing world where public services face multiple and overlapping crises, and leadership must evolve to adapt to this C21st context. The research book, edited by Stephen Brookes, is contemporary in its context and looks forward to what will succeed in the future as well as reflecting upon the lessons of the past. It will energise and provoke the thoughts of the most experienced leader as well as providing a deep well of knowledge for the newest leaders ambitious to do their best to make a positive difference to our society.'

Work and Employment Relations in Southern Europe

The Impact of De-regulation, Organizational Change and Social Fragmentation on Worker Representation and Action

Edited by Carlos J. Fernández Rodríguez, Universidad Autónoma de Madrid, Spain and Miguel Martínez Lucio, University of Manchester, UK

'This is an important and timely book. The immediate effects of the 2008 financial crisis on the economies of Southern Europe are well documented, but the longer term consequences on industrial relations are less well understood. This edited collection presents a wide ranging exploration of the effects of crisis on employment emphasising in particular changes to the collective regulation of work. An important overview of the complex and changing dynamics of these key economies.'

Handbook on City Logistics and Urban Freight

Edited by Edoardo Marcucci, Valerio Gatta, Roma Tre University, Italy and Molde University College, Norway and Michela Le Pira, University of Catania, Italy

'This Handbook is impressive, extensive, and very current. There are many themes that challenge us today, centred on decarbonisation, supply chain constraints and institutional reform, to make us rethink how we might better embed urban freight into the changing fabric of our cities. The contributions to city logistics as seen as a multi-governance structure together with the latest developments in methods through digital twins to focus as much on short-term operational issues in contrast to the longer-term planning and policy issues is impressive.'

Research Handbook on the Transformation of Higher Education

Edited by Liudvika Leišytė, Technical University Dortmund, Germany, Jay R. Dee, University of Massachusetts Boston, US and Barend J.R. van der Meulen, University of Twente, the Netherlands

'A state-of-the-art Handbook on a key institution of our societies. It is a must read for understanding the multiple dynamics of deep change in higher education systems and institutions. Conceptually and empirically rich, multiple perspectives from around the globe highlight the drivers, actors, processes, and effects of transformation in higher education.'

How to Be an Ethnographer

Monika Kostera, University of Warsaw, Poland, Södertörn University, Sweden and Université Paris-Saclay, LITEM, France and Paweł Krzyworzeka, Kozminski University, Poland

'This book on how to "do" ethnography written by Monika Kostera and Paweł Krzyworzeka offers a unique collection of chapters written by a number of scholars expertly engaged with this methodology and method. The reader will be able to enjoy considerable richness of knowledge and experience through book chapters written not only on specific methods linked to ethnography, but also on related processes, theories, practicalities and less explored topics pertaining to ethnographic research.'

A Research Agenda for Leadership Learning and Development through Higher Education

Edited by Susan R. Komives, University of Maryland and Julie E. Owen, George Mason University, US

'Stressing the importance of understanding context, Susan Komives and Julie Owen provide leadership researchers a foundation for addressing the critical questions of not only what to study, using what method, but to what end does their research practice matter? Thus, this book works to make a crucial research shift in leadership studies through higher education towards a more equitable and justice-oriented approach, as authors collectively outline challenges, tensions, and possibilities for a more liberatory leadership.'

Religion and Public Administration An Introduction

Edoardo Ongaro, the Open University, UK and Michele Tantardini, Penn State Harrisburg, US

'This book is a revelation about both the influences of religion on public administration and how the field could be enriched from deeper scholarly attention to religion. I am struck by the breadth of the relevance of religion to public administration. The authors illuminate the relevance of the world's great religions to the field as a whole and to prominent research streams, such as public service motivation. Ongaro and Tantardini offer new perspectives for all public administration scholars to consider and embrace in their research and teaching.'

Handbook of Big Data Research Methods

Edited by Shahriar Akter, University of Wollongong, Australia and Samuel Fosso Wamba, Toulouse Business School, France

'Big data research methods have gained dramatic momentum in the world. Researchers and practitioners extend this line of research constantly by producing journals, posts, news articles and podcasts. However, there is a paucity of a book that covers descriptive, diagnostic, predictive and prescriptive method-based research papers under one umbrella. This is one of those books which will immerse a reader in the past, present and future of big data analytics methods. It is an exceptional book that is grounded in evidence and meaningful to practice.'

A Research Agenda for Consumer Financial Behavior

Edited by Jing Jian Xiao, University of Rhode Island, US and Satish Kumar, Malaviya National Institute of Technology Jaipur, India

'This book is a delightful guide and an upfront review of the economic and behavioral approach to how people manage their finances. It is a collection of the most recent findings for those who seek to acquire new knowledge on consumer financial literacy and financial technology. The book makes significant scientific contributions to the current literature.'

The Rise of Algorithmic Society and the Strategic Role of Arts and Culture

Luciana Lazzeretti, University of Florence, Italy

'There is a fantasy that AI will decide the future on its own. This book shows us that, on the contrary, it is up to us to create meaning and value through these new technologies. Luciana Lazzeretti allows us to measure these challenges and the renewed importance of culture for the development of cities and territories. An important contribution for those who think about innovation today.'

Ironies of Organizational Change

Introduction to Change Management and Organizational Theory

Richard J. Badham, University of Sydney and University of Technology Sydney and Brenda M. Santiago, Inspiring Change, Sydney, Australia

'Many writings and much thinking on organizational change are optimistic and simplistic. In this book the authors brilliantly point at ironies, difficulties and dilemmas, at the same time they provide the reader with an excellent overview of what to consider in change work. The book offers a very good balance between advice-giving and awareness of problems and obstacles in organizations seldom adaptive to plans rarely fully working when confronted with reality. The book is original, very accessible and at times also entertaining to read. It should be read by practitioners, students and scholars interested in change work.'

Edited by Rolf Sternberg, Leibniz University Hannover, Germany, Maria Elo, University of Southern Denmark, Shanghai University, China and Åbo Akademi University, Finland, Jonathan Levie, University of Galway, Ireland and José Ernesto Amorós, Tecnológico de Monterrey, Mexico and Universidad del Desarrollo, Chile

'This book offers a comprehensive analysis of transnational diaspora entrepreneurship, its impact on the economies of the home and host countries and its challenges. It is a great Handbook for international entrepreneurship scholars, but also for the governments, international institutions and other organizations engaged in the promotion of transnational activities of diaspora entrepreneurs.'

OPEN ACCESS CHAPTER Smart Talent Management

Managing People as Knowledge Assets 2nd edition

Edited by Vlad Vaiman, California Lutheran University, Charles Vance, Loyola Marymount University and Ling Ju, 917 Fine Arts Corporation, US

'Smart Talent Management, a term coined by the editors (Vaiman and Vance) in the previous edition of this highly informative and instructive book, is "simply the combination of talent management and knowledge management." In this second edition, the editors advance our understanding of smart talent management rather substantially. They do this through guidance they have provided to and shared with their excellent cadre of chapter contributors. [T]hey have provided a broader path forward for future researchers in the areas of talent management and knowledge management.'

Handbook of Transdisciplinarity: Global Perspective

Edited by Roderick J. Lawrence,
University of Geneva, Switzerland

'An indispensable Handbook on transdisciplinarity that unifies conceptual, pedagogic and practical contributions from over 100 authors across five continents. Transdisciplinarity is a global approach to complexity that progresses "between", "through" and "beyond" individual disciplines. It is an obligatory yet challenging process, helping us to understand the (unstable) current world and to generate novel transformative propositions.'

The Elgar Companion to Digital Transformation, Artificial Intelligence and Innovation in the Economy, Society and Democracy

Edited by Elias G. Carayannis, George Washington University, US, Evangelos Grigoroudis, Technical University of Crete, Greece, David F.J. Campbell, The University for Continuing Education, Austria and Sokratis K. Katsikas, Norwegian University of Science and Technology, Norway

This book examines when, where, how, and why artificial intelligence and digital transformation can boost innovation and transform the economy, society and democracy. It is developed based on the Cyber-D4 nexus, which is a conceptual framework of Cyber-Defense, Cyber-Development, Cyber-Democracy, and Cyber-Diplomacy. This nexus ties new national and industrial cyber strategies, including business strategies for smart cities and the Internet of Things, with the local, national, regional, and global security and economic objectives.

Handbook on Strategic Public Management

Edited by Carsten Greve, Copenhagen Business School, Frederiksberg, Denmark and Tamyko Ysa, ESADE Business School, Spain

'Ever since I wrote Creating Public Value, I have had to argue with my academic colleagues about whether the idea of "strategic public management" could be considered a legitimate academic field that should attract attention from researchers, teachers, and practitioners who were interested in developing the concepts and pedagogies that could enable public officials, and more broadly, public leaders, to do better in mobilizing and directing private and public assets towards the achievement of freer, more prosperous, more secure, more tolerant, and more just societies. This Handbook on Strategic Public Management by Carsten Greve and Tamyko Ysa provides a resounding "yes!" to that question, and goes on to explain what this subject is, and – more significantly, why it is important, and how it can be taught! I am very glad it has been written since it shows the breadth of scholarship focused on this idea, along with the depth and precision of the analytic concepts associated with the larger idea. I recommend it heartily to those who wish to understand the internal logic and potential utility of this field, and to develop it further both in theory and in practice.'

NEW IN PAPERBACK Institutional Theory and Organizational Change

2nd edition

Staffan Furusten, Stockholm University, Sweden

'In this impressive new edition of his well-received book, Staffan Furusten extends his analysis of the impact of institutional environments on contemporary organizations. He considers not only the market forces emphasized in traditional theories, but also crystallized macro- and meso- structures, such as legal arrangements. And he reviews the impact of less-codified ideological and cultural frames that modify and enlarge organizations. The book is a real contribution to the institutional analyses central to contemporary thought, as both an intellectual synthesis and a useful text.'

NEW IN PAPERBACK Gendered Marketing

Pauline Maclaran and Andreas Chatzidakis, Royal Holloway, University of London, UK

'Gendered Marketing, by Maclaran and Chatzidakis, offers a compelling and clear synthesis of contemporary feminist and gender theories and their uses in debates in this field of Marketing and Consumer Behaviour. By providing the conceptual tools for re-writing the texts of this field that so often render gender and its consequences surreptitiously invisible, Gendered Marketing demonstrates how gender and feminism continue to challenge and matter.'

Alliances for Sustainable Futures

Creating and Managing Purpose-Driven Alliances

Jaap Boonstra, Esade Business School Barcelona, Spain and CEMS – The Global Alliance in Management Education and Marcos Eguiguren, UPF Barcelona School of Management, Spain and formerly Global Alliance for Banking on Values

'Collaborating across disciplines and organizational borders is the only way to tackle current societal challenges. The book Alliances for Sustainable Futures is an inspiring work on all facets of alliances and contains many practical insights and methods. A must-read for anyone who wants to contribute to a better and sustainable world.'

– Yvonne Burger, Free University Amsterdam, the Netherlands

Providing an in-depth exploration of the formation, building, development, and evolutionary phases of sustainable alliances, this book presents a new perspective on organizational change that goes beyond modern institutions and offers practical insights on how to cope with paradoxes in the life cycle of alliances.

An Innovative Approach to Understanding and Prevention

David D. Van Fleet, Professor Emeritus, Arizona State University and the late Ella W. Van Fleet, formerly Founder and Owner (Retired), Professional Business Associates, Scottsdale, AZ, US

'As a finance professional, I really enjoyed how Van Fleet and Van Fleet applied Multidimensional Scaling to demonstrate just how much commonality exists between Bullying and Harassment thus creating "B=H". In addition, they clearly demonstrate a very clever application of the V-REEL® framework and how it can significantly help organizations and employees address "B=H". Their application can help establish baselines across 5 criteria areas and provide organizations a means to track their on-going progress.'

How to do Action Research for Transformations

At a Time of Eco-Social Crisis

Hilary Bradbury, AR+ Action Research Plus Foundation, International

'Hilary Bradbury has made many important contributions to the field of action research over some decades. Yet, I found this book to be her most interesting piece of writing. It is experimental in form and successfully mixes stories of real-world change processes, with auto-biographical reflection and conceptual analysis in a way which really made me think. The book is an erudite and passionate articulation of pathways to action at a time when the world urgently needs to nurture the "proliferating micro worlds" that she describes.'
