Research Handbook on the Sociology of the Family

Edited by Norbert F. Schneider, Federal Institute for Population Research, Wiesbaden and Michaela Kreyenfeld, Hertie School, Berlin, Germany

'The Research Handbook brings together contributions from leading international experts within the field of the sociology of the family, drawing on disciplinary backgrounds in theoretical and empirical sociology, demography, economics, political science and wider social sciences. By providing a comprehensive overview of the key issues and debates within contemporary European family sociology, ranging from the gendered division of work within families, intimate and intergeneration relationships, through to the role of family policies and different welfare regimes, it will be critical reading for all scholars interested in how families are coping and how they are evolving. The list of contributors reads like a "who's who" and the book will rightly gain a place on the bookshelves of family researchers, practitioners and policy makers across the globe.'

Handbook of Citizenship and Migration

Edited by Marco Giugni, University of Geneva, Switzerland and Maria Grasso, Queen Mary University of London, UK

'Citizenship and migration have been increasingly important topics in academic research as well as in public discourse. This Handbook connects the two phenomena systematically, looking at migration from a citizenship perspective and examining how citizenship has been transformed through migration. It provides an excellent introduction into the state of art with regard to the membership, rights, and participation dimensions of the citizenship and migration nexus.'

Justice and Democracy

A Progressive Agenda for the Twenty-First Century

Mike Berry, RMIT University, Australia

'A thorough reappraisal of the strained relationship between justice and democracy has never been more important than in our current global context of the Great Unsettling. Mike Berry not only offers a penetrating historical analysis of this relationship, but also provides a thoughtful roadmap to social justice based on the necessary restructuring of global capitalism. Rejecting both neoliberal market globalism and the populist retreat to economic nationalism, this book calls instead for a reglobalization of the enduring social democratic principles of equality, solidarity, and anti-authoritarianism. A must-read!'

A Modern Guide to Wellbeing Research

Edited by Beverley A. Searle, University of Dundee, Jessica Pykett, University of Birmingham, and Maria Jesus Alfaro-Simmonds, University of Birmingham, UK

'A powerful, thought-provoking and timely contribution, offering new insights that will greatly enhance our understanding of wellbeing and its determinants.'

– Dimitris Ballas, University of Groningen, the Netherlands

This insightful Modern Guide explores heterodox approaches to modern wellbeing research, with a specific focus on how wellbeing is understood and practised, exploring policies and actions which are taken to shape wellbeing. It evaluates contemporary trends in wellbeing research, including the sometimes competing definitions, methods and approaches offered by different disciplinary perspectives.

Handbook on Austerity, Populism and the Welfare State

Edited by Bent Greve, Roskilde University, Denmark

'This timely book offers compelling, critical yet nuanced analyses of the three key features shaping welfare-state reform since the Great Recession: austerity, retrenchment and populism. Covering a rich array of European regions, sectors and policy fields, it is an exceptionally stimulating contribution to the debate on the welfare state's future.'

– Kees van Kersbergen, Aarhus University, Denmark

This innovative Handbook presents the core concepts associated with austerity, retrenchment and populism and explores how they can be used to analyse developments in different welfare states and in specific social policies. Leading experts highlight how these concepts have influenced and changed welfare states around the globe and impacted specific areas including pensions, long-term care, the labour market, taxation, social activism and gender equality.

Justice in the Workplace

Overcoming Ethical Dilemmas

Edited by Matthieu de Nanteuil, University of Louvain, Belgium

'In this valuable work, Matthieu de Nanteuil critically reflects on the ethical problems and challenges that arise in the workplace, within societies where cost-benefit calculations and power relationships prevail. The author very convincingly considers that workers deeply aspire, not only to meaning, but to social justice in their working environment – yet, that ways towards a more just working environment are plural. A very appropriate book in our turbulent era!'

Research Handbook on Sports and Society

Edited by Elizabeth C.J. Pike, University of Hertfordshire, UK

'As the social significance of sport seemingly grows unabated, an understanding of the issues affecting our diverse societies is essential. This Research Handbook draws together an internationally distinguished set of authors and brings these issues to life through a distinctive approach. By exploring the personal research journeys of researchers in the field, and the social activism which brings these issues to the forefront of public debate, the Research Handbook is set to become compulsory reading for students and researchers alike.'

Global Youth Unemployment

History, Governance and Policy

Edited by Ross Fergusson and Nicola Yeates, The Open University, UK

'Rarely has a study of global youth unemployment so adeptly combined an empirically-grounded scrutiny of its levels and trends, with a conceptually nuanced analysis of its political economy drivers at multiple scales. Fergusson and Yeates make a compelling case for seeing endemic youth unemployment as an issue of grave social injustice—one that supply-side palliative approaches have patently failed to address, and which is in urgent need of integrated employment, social protection and macroeconomic policies backed by a more cohesive system of social and economic governance at the global level.'

– Shahra Razavi, Director of the Social Protection Department, International Labour Organization, Switzerland

Field Guide for Research in Community Settings

Tools, Methods, Challenges and Strategies

Edited by M. Rezaul Islam, Niaz Ahmed Khan, University of Dhaka, Bangladesh, Siti Hajar Abu Bakar Ah, Haris Abd Wahab and Mashitah Binti Hamidi, University of Malaya, Malaysia

'Occasionally, a particularly insightful work is published with much potential for fostering improved learning and application. This is such a book. The Field Guide offers vital guidance on conducting fieldwork across contexts for community-based work. I consider this essential reading for anyone involved in identifying community issues and potential solutions.'

Frictions in Cosmopolitan Mobilities

The Ethics and Social Practices of Movement across Cultures

Edited by Rodanthi Tzanelli, University of Leeds, UK

'Following on from her previous work, Dr Tzanelli's book is a journey in complexities where she untangles before our eyes the many threads that constitute contemporary mobilities. Theoretically grounded, she uses the film The Joker as a guide to revisit our assumptions on society, politics and mobility, while shedding light on the irony of performing cosmopolitanism and calling for a pluriversal perspective on knowledge. This book is a challenge to monolithic and ready-made thinking but mostly a much-needed look, without complacency, at our time.'
