Rethinking Public Choice

Richard E. Wagner, George Mason University, US

'Rethinking Public Choice is an elegantly written book of thoughtful and deep insights that present a powerful vision of economics as a social science. Wagner's modern framework of entangled political economy unifies public choice theory, constitutional economics, political economy and evolutionary economics. This is the perfect companion for students of public choice.'

Reforming Capitalism for the Common Good

Essays in Institutional and Post-Keynesian Economics

Charles J. Whalen, University at Buffalo, Buffalo, NY, US

'The essays in Charles Whalen's book are a thoughtful and original exploration of institutional and post-Keynesian economics. Whalen draws fresh insights from the writings of John R. Commons, Hyman Minsky, and others, offering them as correctives to the anomic libertarianism of mainstream economics. Throughout his career, Whalen has honed his analytical approach to devise economic policies for a more stable and equitable economy.'

The Future of Central Banking

Edited by Sylvio Kappes, Federal University of Ceará, Brazil and Young Scholars Initiative, Louis-Philippe Rochon, Laurentian University, Canada and Founding Editor Emeritus, Review of Keynesian Economics and Guillaume Vallet, Université Grenoble Alpes and Centre de Recherche en Economie de Grenoble (CREG), France

'Central banking is about the provision of the means of payment, and payment is, whether we like it or not, at the core of the organisation of modern society. Therefore it should not come as a surprise that central banking will have to evolve with society and has to take up its ever changing challenges. The authors of this unique book are thought leaders in the various fields in which central banking has to react or can lead change of the economy and society. For central bankers the book is a rich source of inspiration for the coming years.'

The Elgar Series on Central Banking and Monetary Policy

Central Banking, Monetary Policy and the Environment

Edited by Louis-Philippe Rochon, Laurentian University, Canada, Editor of Review of Political Economy and Founding Editor Emeritus, Review of Keynesian Economics, Sylvio Kappes, Federal University of Ceará, Brazil and Young Scholars Initiative and Guillaume Vallet, Université Grenoble Alpes and Centre de Recherche en Economie de Grenoble (CREG), France

'The editors of this book have produced an amazing book for an equally amazing new series on central banking that could not have come out at a better time. Climate change and environmental issues are at the top of our concerns, and many are wondering what role central banks have to play in this saga. The editors have brought together an incredible list of established and younger scholars alike, from a heterodox perspective. They offer a refreshing analysis of the current situation and dare to offer credible and bold solutions for a green way forward. This book must be on the shelf of every student of economics.'

Central Banking, Monetary Policy and the Future of Money

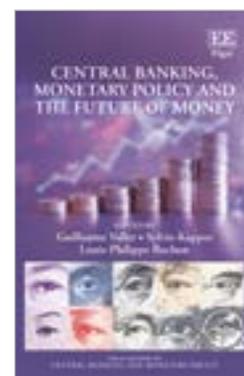

Edited by Guillaume Vallet, Université Grenoble Alpes and Centre de Recherche en Economie de Grenoble (CREG), France, Sylvio Kappes, Federal University of Ceará, Brazil, Keynesian Economics Working Group, Young Scholars Initiative and Louis-Philippe Rochon, Laurentian University, Canada, Editor-in-Chief of Review of Political Economy and Founding Editor Emeritus, Review of Keynesian Economics

'Research about the future of money is too often biased or incomplete because the potentialities of a single type of money (crypto-asset, digital central bank central bank digital currency or local complementary currency) are analyzed by making technological development the main force for change. The authors of Central Banking, Monetary Policy and the Future of Money take up the challenge of approaching these potentialities by considering how the plurality of both material and institutional forms (public, private and community) evolves in various socio-economic and cultural contexts. We discover the possible scenarios in a future that is multiple and uncertain because it is constantly being reframed by the ever-changing present contexts.'

How to Engage Policy Makers with Your Research

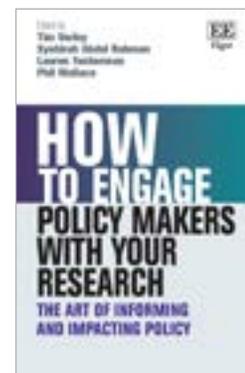

The Art of Informing and Impacting Policy

Edited by Tim Vorley, Syahirah Abdul Rahman and Lauren Tuckerman, Oxford Brookes University, UK and Phil Wallace, University of Manchester, UK

'There is a growing interest in improving academic policy engagement in the UK and internationally. However, we still have a lot to learn about how to do this work better. This book provides a novel contribution, with authors drawn from UK government, parliament, research funders and academia. It focuses on three key areas: how academics articulate the value and relevance of research to policy, the different ways in which academic-policy engagement occur and how research impacts upon policy. The contributors bring a vast amount of experience to bear on these topics and as such help to move forward our thinking on how academic-policy engagement might help to promote the use of research to support policy making.'

NEW IN PAPERBACK A Modern Guide to the Economics of Happiness

Edited by Luigino Bruni, LUMSA University, Rome, Alessandra Smerilli, PFSE-Axilium University and Dalila De Rosa, Ministry of Economics and Finance, Italy

Exploring the modern approach to the economics of happiness, which came about with the Easterlin Paradox, this book analyses and assesses the idea that as a country gets richer the happiness of its citizens remains the same. The book moves through three distinct pillars of study in the field: first analysing the historical and philosophical foundations of the debate; then the methodological and measurements issues and their political implications; and finally empirical applications and discussion about what determines a happy life.
