The European Union as a Global Counter-Terrorism Actor

Christian Kaunert, Dublin City University, Republic of Ireland and University of South Wales, Alex MacKenzie, University of Liverpool and Sarah Léonard, University of the West of England, UK

'If in doubt whether the European Union is a capable global counter-terrorism actor, read this excellent book written by top-notch experts. Starting from the perspectives of securitization and actorhood, you are guided through the complex history of EU counter-terrorism, demonstrating how terrorism strongly propelled institutionalization, coordination and legislation in the EU internal security theatre. With mounting concerns about violent extremism, disinformation campaigns and hybrid conflicts, this scholarly book offers crucial insights for the future of Europe's security architecture.'

Handbook on Gender in Asia

Edited by Shirlena Huang, National University of Singapore and Kanchana N. Ruwanpura, University of Edinburgh, UK

'Handbook on Gender in Asia provides a nuanced understanding of gender in multiple Asian contexts. Content covers the global politics and privilege of research and publishing and the emerging issue of population ageing, health and elder care. Gender and mobility figure strongly in a section on migration and transnational families, and authors examine gendered labor in formal as well as informal, precarious employment. This valuable compilation will appeal to readers seeking multidisciplinary materials and engaging, reflexive voices of non-Western scholars.'

Handbook on Intervention and Statebuilding

Edited by Nicolas Lemay-Hébert, Australian National University

'Nicolas Lemay-Hébert is to be congratulated for producing this critical Handbook on Intervention and Statebuilding. It challenges conventional and failed perspectives on state building, nation building and society building. There are more women theorists in this book than men. Their distinctive feminist perspectives challenge outmoded 19th and 20th century masculinist views on the state, state building and nation building. The result is a refreshing, inclusive reframing of state-society relations and a prudential approach to intervention.'

Smart Policies for Societies in Transition

The Innovation Challenge of Inclusion, Resilience and Sustainability

Edited by Mats Benner, Lund University School of Economics and Management, Göran Marklund, VINNOVA, Swedish Governmental Agency for Innovation Systems and Sylvia Schwaag Serger, Lund University, Sweden

'This is a fascinating book about innovation policy that goes beyond the narrow focus on economic growth or international competition. It offers fresh new insight and ideas about the transformative role that smart policies can play in addressing a broader set of social, economic, and ecological challenges we face. It is a must read for not only scholars but also policy practitioners who care about innovation and its broad impact on society.'

Handbook of Critical Environmental Politics

Edited by Luigi Pellizzoni, University of Pisa, Emanuele Leonardi, University of Bologna and Viviana Asara, University of Ferrara, Italy

'This magnificent Handbook shows how 21st century politics occupies the interstices of everyday life – from the digitised molecule to the spouse tax; from geopolitics to post-work. The editors are relational thinkers, well aware that the environment, so-called, is not the same as 'nature'; rather, their title conveys an academic field subjecting itself to a reflexive process of decolonisation.'

China in Central Europe

Seeking Allies, Creating Tensions

Gabriela Pleschová, Comenius University, Bratislava, Slovakia

'In her pioneering research Gabriela Pleschova investigates a complex international relationship. Chinese migrants have found their way for better life in Hungary, the country which has hosted the largest Chinese community in Central Europe. However, Hungarians increasingly felt mistrust and fear toward the collaboration of the authoritarian Orbán regime and the Chinese Communist government. These contradictory processes are analyzed in this fascinating book.'

How to Engage Policy Makers with Your Research

The Art of Informing and Impacting Policy

Edited by Tim Vorley, Syahirah Abdul Rahman and Lauren Tuckerman, Oxford Brookes University, UK and Phil Wallace, University of Manchester, UK

'There is a growing interest in improving academic policy engagement in the UK and internationally. However, we still have a lot to learn about how to do this work better. This book provides a novel contribution, with authors drawn from UK government, parliament, research funders and academia.'

It focuses on three key areas: how academics articulate the value and relevance of research to policy, the different ways in which academic-policy engagement occur and how research impacts upon policy. The contributors bring a vast amount of experience to bear on these topics and as such help to move forward our thinking on how academic-policy engagement might help to promote the use of research to support policy making.'

Debating Biopolitics

New Perspectives on the Government of Life

Edited by Marco Piasentier, University of Jyväskylä, Finland and Sara Raimondi, New College of the Humanities at Northeastern, UK

'This book is a wonderful guide to how contemporary understandings of life (both biological and political) become central to its governance. This is all the more vital as biopolitics is at the moment perhaps the most dynamic field of thought in the humanities and social sciences. From debates over COVID-19 responses to the governance of climate change, biopolitical framings are at the heart of social and political contestation.'

The Institutional Context of Public–Private Partnerships

Lessons from the Arab States of the Gulf Cooperation Council

Mhamed Biggautane, The University of Melbourne, Australia

'Much of the literature on PPPs examines project-level partnerships involving the procurement of specific long-term public infrastructure, along with critical success factors. As the title of the book indicates, Mhamed Biggautane takes a very different and ground breaking approach to the subject, exploring the role of the institutional environments and dynamics, challenging the prevailing Engineering, Procurement and Construction (EPC) model. This clearly written volume draws on case studies of the institutional structure of Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Qatar.'

The Rise of Populism in Central and Eastern Europe

Edited by Simona Kukovič, University of Ljubljana, Slovenia and Petr Just, Metropolitan University Prague, Czech Republic

'The Rise of Populism in Central and Eastern Europe provides an insightful and valuable overview of how some political parties and actors have capitalised on the gradual rejection of the liberal elite censuses across post-communist countries of central and eastern Europe. The book is well crafted and skilfully edited to present chapters, from across central and eastern Europe, which provide a series of explorations as to how citizen alienation from political elites and the liberal consensus can see the rise of new political movements which challenge the established order. The book is an excellent addition to our knowledge and understanding of developing political phenomena.'

Speaking Truth to Power

Expertise, Politics and Governance

Benjamin Ginsberg and Collin Paschall, Johns Hopkins University, US

'Ginsberg and Paschall, two experts in their own right, have produced a provocative book about the role of expertise in politics and policy-making. Amidst a host of illuminating examples and serious arguments, a core insight leaps out at the reader – that expertise is both a "counterweight to power" and a "weapon for the powerful!''

Promoting Religious Freedom in an Age of Intolerance

Barbara Ann Rieffer-Flanagan, Central Washington University, US

'In calling for a "coherent multilayered approach" to promote religious freedom, this thoughtful and comprehensive book of keen insight details the messy process of progress, offering comparative perspectives, policies and practices from around the world that can teach us all. Promoting Religious Freedom in an Age of Intolerance is that rare read of ready reference relevant to academics and activists alike.'
