Democratic Constitutionalism in India and the European Union
Comparing the Law of Democracy in Continental Polities

Studies in Comparative Law and Legal Culture series

Edited by Philipp Dann, Professor of Public and Comparative Law, Humboldt University Berlin, Germany and Arun K. Thiruvengadam, Professor, Azim Premji University, Bengaluru, India

Comparing the structures and challenges of democratic constitutionalism in India and the European Union, this book explores how democracy is possible within vastly diverse societies of continental scale, and why a constitutional framework is best able to secure the ideals of collective autonomy and individual dignity. It contributes to an emerging comparative discussion on structures of power, separation of powers and a comparative law of democracy, which has long been neglected in comparative constitutional studies.

'This book on comparative constitutional law enters new ground in various ways. It compares a big and socio-culturally very diverse state, which has outgrown the traditional concept of the nation-state, and a big and also very diverse political entity composed of nation-states, which has outgrown the traditional concept of a supranational organization. In addition, it is a rare example of a North-South comparison. And it proposes a new methodological approach to comparative constitutionalism, called “slow comparison”. With all these assets the book promises to considerably enrich the territorial scope and the methodological instruments of comparative research in constitutional law.’

– Dieter Grimm, Former Justice of the Federal Constitutional Court of Germany and Humboldt University of Berlin, Germany

‘This book is a remarkable achievement towards a truly reflective, collaborative and critical endeavor in reinforcing north-south dialogue on democratic constitutionalism. It fills an important gap in comparative law scholarship and thinking by bringing together two worlds that although may have had very different trajectories and histories, contain much that allows for interpretative learning and practice.’

– Armin von Bogdandy, Max Planck Institute for Comparative Public Law and International Law, Germany

‘Engaging the respective EU-India institutions and the “urgency” to find “sources of resilience and survival”, Philipp Dann and Arun Thiruvengadam invite rigorous thinking on difficult themes such as futures of democracy, representation, pluralism, equality, rights, and juridification. This immensely thought-provoking anthology bristles with critical insights, locating even “ultimate savours”, in doing comparative law and jurisprudence.’

– Upendra Baxi, University of Warwick, UK

2021 320 pp Hardback 978 1 78990 156 6 £95.00 £85.50 $145.00 $130.50
Elgaronline 978 1 78990 157 3

Edward Elgar Publishing Ltd. is registered in the UK at: The Lypiatts, 15 Lansdown Road, Cheltenham, Glos GL50 2JA. Registered number: 2041703