Corporate Recovery in an Integrated Europe
Harmonisation, Coordination, and Judicial Cooperation

Irene Lynch Fannon, Professor, School of Law, University College Cork and currently Head of Knowledge Management, Matheson, Ireland, Jennifer L.L. Gant, Lecturer in Law, University of Derby School of Law, and Aoife Finnerty, Senior Research Associate, University of Bristol, UK

Exploring the considerable qualitative research conducted by the Judicial Cooperation in Economic Recovery (JCOERE) Project, this book provides a rich analysis of the questions surrounding the contrasting legal traditions and cultures within the European framework.

‘Procedural coordination and substantive harmonisation in the legal field of corporate restructuring in the European Union are important and urgent concerns at the interface between company and insolvency law. The present work, written by renowned authors, makes a ground-breaking and valuable contribution to this challenging task.’
– Reinhard Bork, Universität Hamburg, Germany

‘A unique, fully referenced, and invaluable study of the European Insolvency Regulation (Recast) and the Preventive Restructuring Directive. Sharp focus on corporate rescue and rehabilitation as well as judicial cooperation and legal culture contextualises the measures as products of the EU’s policy of differentiated integration in its pursuit of an “ever closer union”’.
– Gerard McCormack, University of Leeds, UK

‘Following the 2019 Restructuring and Insolvency Directive and the pandemic, many countries in Europe have renovated their insolvency and restructuring laws. Do you want to know whether all the new options will work in a cross-border case? This book provides the answer based on both excellent doctrinal and insightful empirical research. A remarkable read. The project team clearly identifies the key driver for success: cross-border cooperation of the judiciary. Unless judges are open-minded, qualified, trained, and experienced enough to handle a cross-border case, stakeholders will continue to lose value in a rather territorial case management.’
– Stephan Madaus, Martin Luther University, Germany
