Middle Class China
Identity and Behaviour
CSC China Perspectives series
Edited by Minglu Chen, University of Sydney, Australia and David S.G. Goodman, Xi'an Jiaotong-Liverpool University, China

A general expectation has developed that China's middle class will generate not only social but also political change. This expectation often overlooks the reality that there is no single Chinese middle class with a common identity or will to action. This timely volume examines the behaviour and identity of the different elements of China's middle class – entrepreneurs, managers, and professionals – in order to understand their centrality to the wider processes of social and political change in China.