

The Role of the Postal and Delivery Sector in a Digital Age

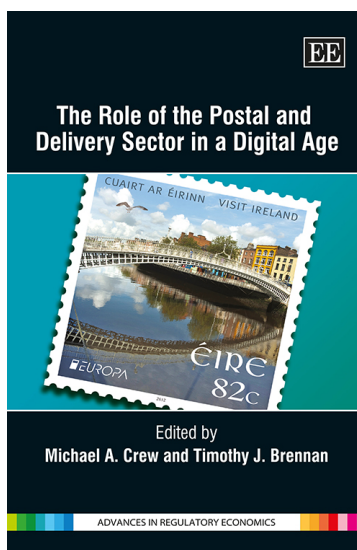

Advances in Regulatory Economics series

Edited by the late Michael A. Crew, formerly CRRl Professor of Regulatory Economics and Director, Center for Research in Regulated Industries (CRRl), Rutgers Business School, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, Newark, US and Timothy J. Brennan, Professor of Public Policy and Economics, University of Maryland, Baltimore County and Senior Fellow, Resources for the Future, US

This volume, the result of the 21st Conference on Postal and Delivery Economics (Ireland, 2013), describes the continuing problem of the decline of the postal sector in the face of electronic competition and offers strategies for the survival of mail services in a digital age.

'A seminal body of impressive scholarship, The Role of the Postal and Delivery Sector in a Digital Age is as informed and informative as it is thoughtful, and thought-provoking, making it very highly recommended reading for governmental policy makers, and a critically important addition to academic library reference collections.'
