Comparative Property Law

The International Library of Comparative Law series

Edited by Antonio Gambaro, Professor of Law, University of Milan and Fellow of the Accademia dei Lincei, Italy

This important two-volume collection provides a readily accessible selection of the most influential papers in the field of comparative property law. These articles have played an essential role in shaping property law discourse on both a national and global level. Each study carefully examines different concepts and aspects of property, including theoretical approaches and comparative perspectives, followed by a series of key constitutional questions. This structure offers the reader the opportunity to trace the evolution of comparative property law through the global legal community. Students, teachers and practitioners will find this collection a fascinating read, as well as a helpful tool in discussing and thoroughly understanding this central, yet profoundly puzzling topic.

‘Through a stimulating compilation of break-through essays by outstanding legal scholars, this collection traces the history of legal ideas regarding and surrounding property. By identifying the link between old and new research perspectives on property law, the volumes take the reader from a static dimension and analysis of property, to a modern, dynamic, global and comparative approach to it.’
