This comprehensive Research Handbook discusses how the EU has used its regulatory power to steer towards environmentally friendly behaviour, delving into the deep concerns related to the compliance with and enforcement of EU environmental law. It also highlights the important role of civil society's use of environmental procedural rights, and characterizes how the CJEU case law has contributed to the effective implementation of EU environmental legislation.

‘With an impressive line-up of top quality academics in the area of European environmental law, this Research Handbook covers a broad range of highly topical issues. It will be a great read for academics and practitioners alike.’

– Jan Jans, University of Groningen, the Netherlands