The WTO, Intellectual Property Rights and the Knowledge Economy

Critical Perspectives on the Global Trading System and the WTO series

Edited by Keith E. Maskus, Professor and Chair, Department of Economics, University of Colorado, Boulder, US

This comprehensive collection brings together major articles written by leading economists, political scientists and legal scholars to analyse the complexities of the modern global system of intellectual property rights (IPRs) and its relationship with the WTO.

‘The overall issues addressed in the compendium cover most relevant aspects and provide a stimulus for further investigation. Hence, the selection is excellent.’
– Alexander Cuntz, Science and Public Policy

‘More than any other part of the Uruguay Round (1986–94), the TRIPS Agreement took the GATT/WTO system – and the global economy – into new and uncharted waters. Both the negotiations leading to the Agreement and the controversies since the signing have stimulated economists, lawyers and other scholars to explore the many facets of the globalization of intellectual property rights. Professor Maskus has done a superb job of selecting from the extensive literature 21 articles covering the key issues (he also provides a very useful Introduction). The resulting comprehensive volume is certain to be a key reference work for anyone interested in intellectual property rights, the multilateral trading system, economic development, North/South relations, innovation and related fields.’
– Richard Blackhurst, Editor, World Trade Review and Director of Economic Research, GATT/WTO Secretariat, 1985–97, Graduate Institute of International Studies, Switzerland

‘This collection, edited by one of the leading scholars in the field, provides a broad-based introduction to the economic and legal issues raised by TRIPs and the accompanying globalization of intellectual property law. It ranges from accessible, policy-oriented essays to cutting edge technical papers. Scholars, students and policymakers with an interest in intellectual property issues should find the collection to be an invaluable reference.’
– Alan Sykes, University of Chicago, US
