Enterprising new firms drive economic growth, and women around the world are important contributors to that growth. As entrepreneurs, they seize opportunities, develop and deliver new goods and services and, in the process, create wealth for themselves, their families, communities, and countries. This volume explores the role women entrepreneurs play in this economic progress, highlighting the challenges they encounter in launching and growing their businesses, and providing detailed studies of how their experiences vary from country to country.

‘The female entrepreneurship researchers’ community has to thank these women for their brilliant work in reviewing, revising and selecting the best papers from the second Diana International Conference that were finally edited for this volume. . . the book is a good compendium of female entrepreneurship circumstances in different countries that focuses specifically on the explanation as to why gender plays a role in the number of ventures started by women and why they are in general smaller and less growth-oriented.’
– Manuela Pardo-del-Val, International Entrepreneurship and Management Journal

‘. . . this edited text draws upon a range of international contributors to present a comparative overview of challenges facing female entrepreneurs seeking to grow their firms. . . this is an interesting book that makes a welcome contribution to contemporary debate.’
– Susan Marlow, International Small Business Journal

‘The data and information presented in this work will be of particular interest to students and scholars of entrepreneurship or labor and women’s studies. Recommended. General readers; upper-division undergraduate through professional collections.’
– E.P. Hoffman, Choice
